

Tailor-made to meet customer needs

The underground car park was realised for the new head office of GasOil Technology a.s., a multidisciplinary service provider in the oil and gas business. It serves the 180 employees of the company. The construction project was carried out by the Slovakian, long-time partner company Hornex.

The new head office is in Slovakia, near Poprad. The building and the underground car park were designed with the support of an architect and are the new flagship of the company. With its mixture of wood, steel and glass, the building reflects the quality and modern spirit of the company. The two office floors are friendly and full of light, the underground parking is a real custom-made product - individual and functional.
